Through the Years . .

"It Takes a Long Pull to Get There"

"September Song"

When the fun-filled, exciting summer days fade with the setting sun and the leaves begin to change their faded green dresses to scarlet, vermillion, and golden gowns, the thoughts of teens turn to school.

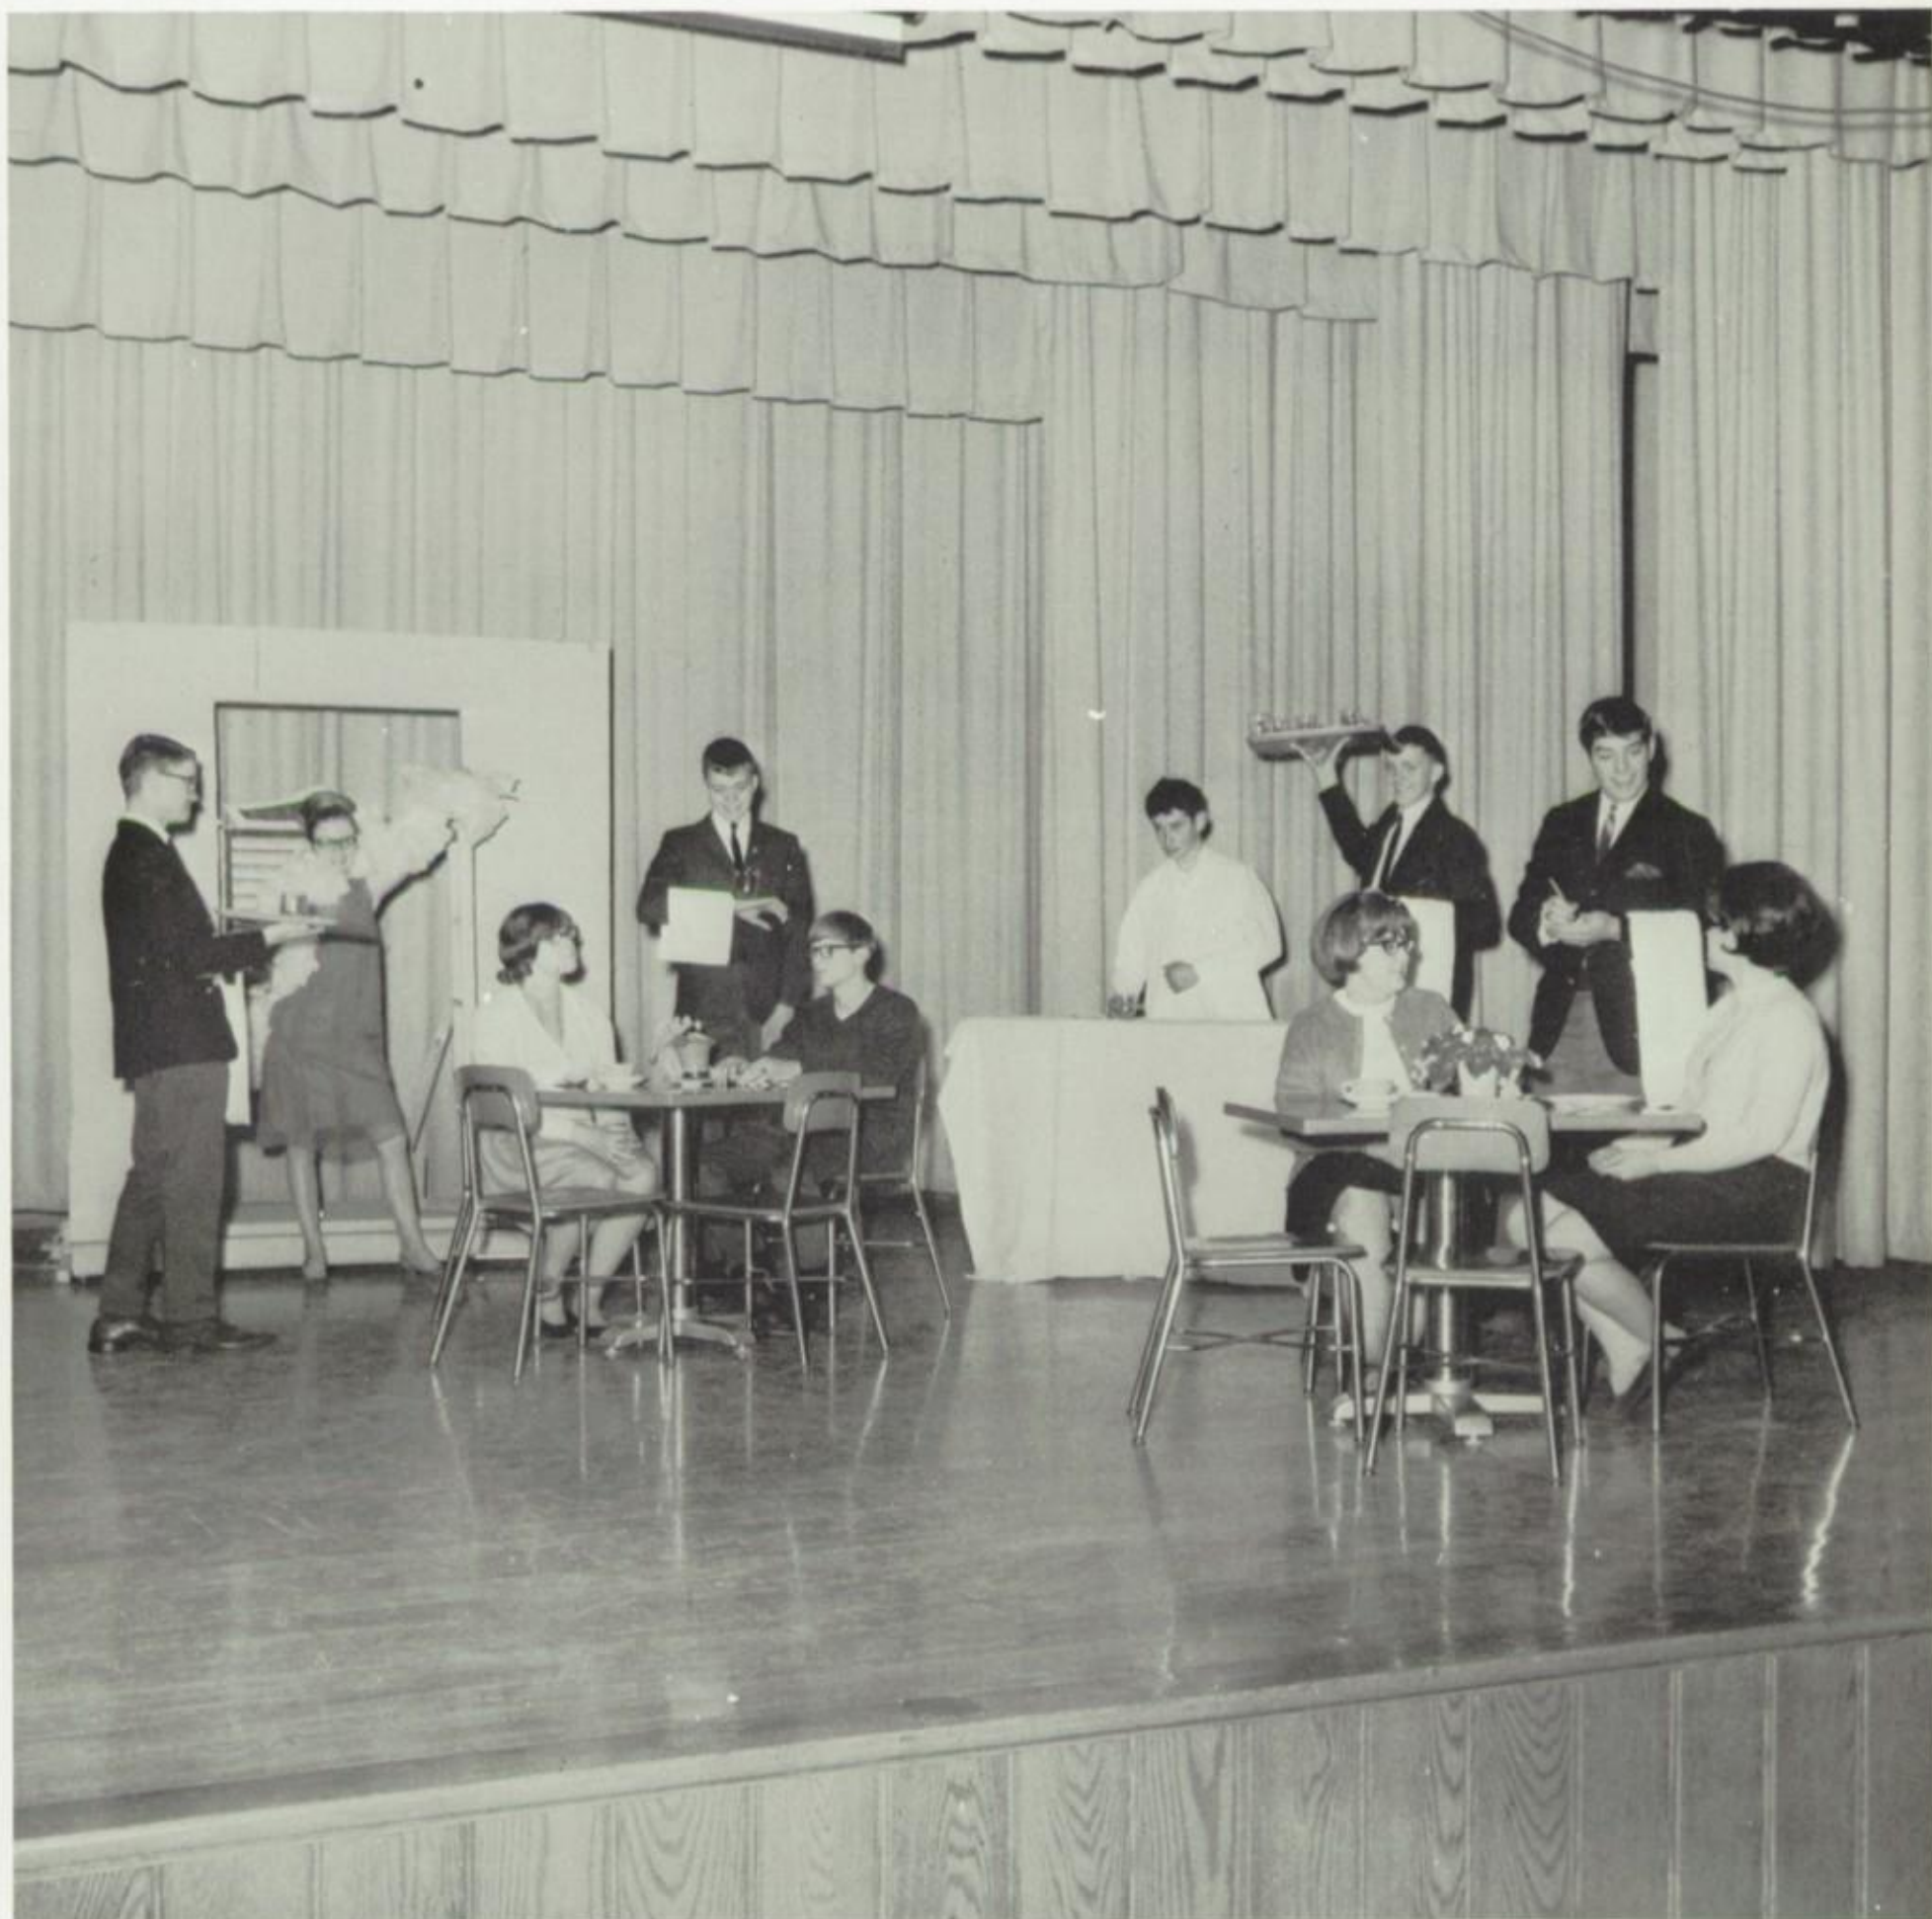

Many changes occur with the arrival of a season, including a sparkling addition, eager, unfamiliar faces, and newly formed organizations. Yet the functions of the school remain the same. There will always be studying to do, activities to enjoy, and problems to solve. As everybody knows, problems can often be worked out best while strolling through the leaf-strewn park with a friend.

Foreword

We, the Anchora staff, present you with our 1967 yearbook. Our theme is Broadway Musicals; therefore, we have used the names of musicals and representative songs as quotes under the senior pictures and our snapshots. As we recall scenes from these famous shows, we hope you will enjoy the results of all the planning, thought, and hard work that have gone into this "production."

We have graced this edition with a "colorful" introduction to school life. It is the hope of the Anchora staff that it will serve not only as a summary of but a basis for the memories of your high school life.

Hello, Dolly

Prologue

School life would be dull indeed if it were not for activities to indulge in and organizations to join. Represented here by our hard-working marching band, they teach co-operation and school spirit, necessary assets for any group.

Last, but by no means least, are our varied athletic programs, designed to meet every type of ability and skill. Though our teams may not always be victorious, enthusiasm, team work, and good sportsmanship run high in the competition and in the memories.

"I See a Band of Spirits Bright"

Lucky Lady

It is our hope that each of us will do his part to continue and further the pride we all share in belonging to the elite student body that walk down the halls of M.H.S.

Oh Lady, Lady

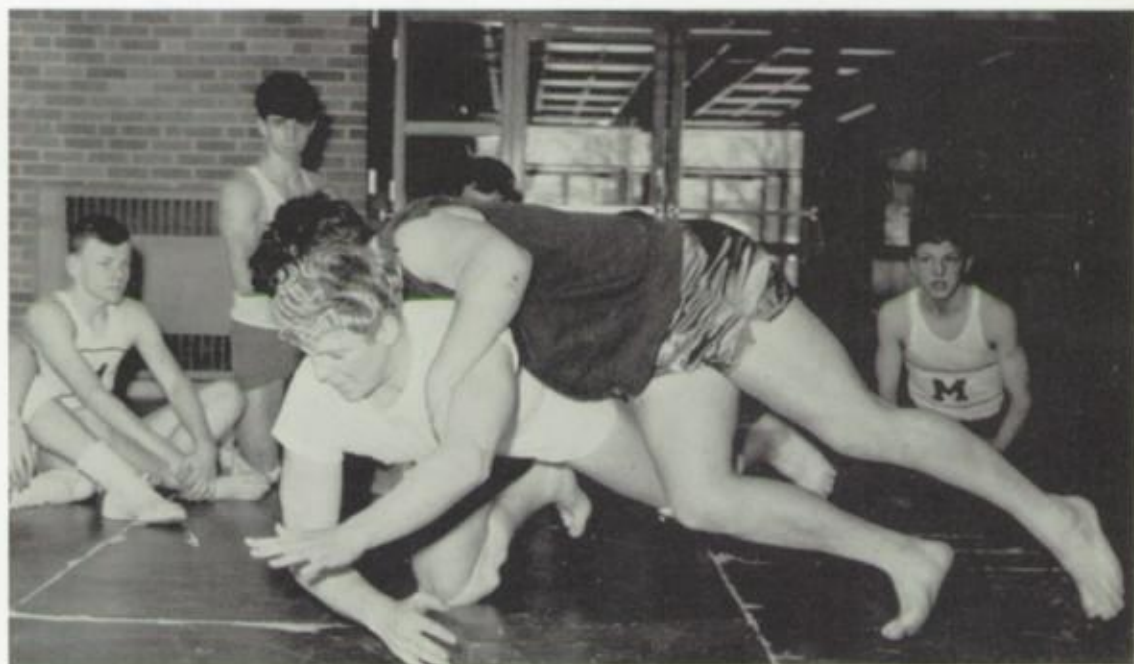

Moanin' Low

A wrestling team was organized this year as an experiment to see how many boys were interested in participating in this sport. As enthusiasm was high, plans were made for competition in the Capital Circuit League next year.

Mr. Ben Blackiston did the coaching and master-minded methods of getting the team recognized. Although there weren't any competitive meets, the team did visit other schools and got training through this experience.
